The wait is finally over - the opening day of the 2019-2020 season is here! And wouldn't ya know it...there's a snowfall warning in effect!

7 day/week operations commence today and we're expecting that we'll be open first thing at 9 AM with Sundance (Blue) Chair, Huckleberry Chair, Green Chair, and Buckaroo carpet. Tamarack (Red) Chair is scheduled to operate as well, with a delayed opening likely due to morning terrain assessments needing some extra time. In terms of terrain, most or all runs on the main mountain from Drifter to the North boundary are likely to open, with the exception of some lower gladed runs below the North Road and Shotgun. Terrain accessed from Huckleberry & Green Chair will be open as it was last weekend for Sneak Peek!

Today we're expecting a mix of sun and cloud followed by increasing cloudiness, a drop in temperatures, and snow beginning this evening and continuing overnight. The freezing level should continue to hover a bit below mid-mountain this morning before dropping to the valley bottom by this afternoon. Winds are expected from the west 40 km/h with gusts to 60 km/h, subsiding later today.

A couple of events are on tap today with our Boarderline presents Opening Day Rail Jam taking place on our early season park in the Green zone between 1 PM and 4 PM as well as Fall4Film's "Tasty Treats Vol. 1" film being shown in the T-Bar Pub, starting at 7 PM. Early season conditions exist. Please watch for what lies beneath - ski & ride with care.
